My Identities

present continuous

In this photo, I am sitting in the science lab.

I am wearing my school uniform and I am half-smiling at the camera.

My classmates are with me, and we are recording a video for a subject.

I am paying attention to the topic of the video.

We are working on a group activity.

present simple

At school, I behave well and respect my teachers and classmates.

I always try to be kind and responsible.

I listen in class and help my classmates when they need help.

I have friends at school and get along well with them. We talk, laugh, and spend time together during breaks. I like being with my friends because they make me feel comfortable and happy.

I don't fight or argue with people; I prefer to stay calm and maintain a positive attitude with everyone.

I enjoy going to school (sometimes) because I feel good with my friends.

In these pictures, as you can see, I am spending time with my friends.

My identity is changing when I am with them — I am feeling different.

I am having a great time because we are creating fun moments together.

We are always laughing and enjoying ourselves when we are remembering what happened.

present simple

When I am with my friends, I act more relaxed and open.

I laugh a lot and I enjoy every moment with them.

I feel comfortable because they understand me and accept me as I am.

I talk about my thoughts, tell jokes, and share my opinions.

I always try to be a good friend.

I support them when they have problems, and they support me too.

I don't hide my personality — I just act like myself.

I trust my friends and they trust me.

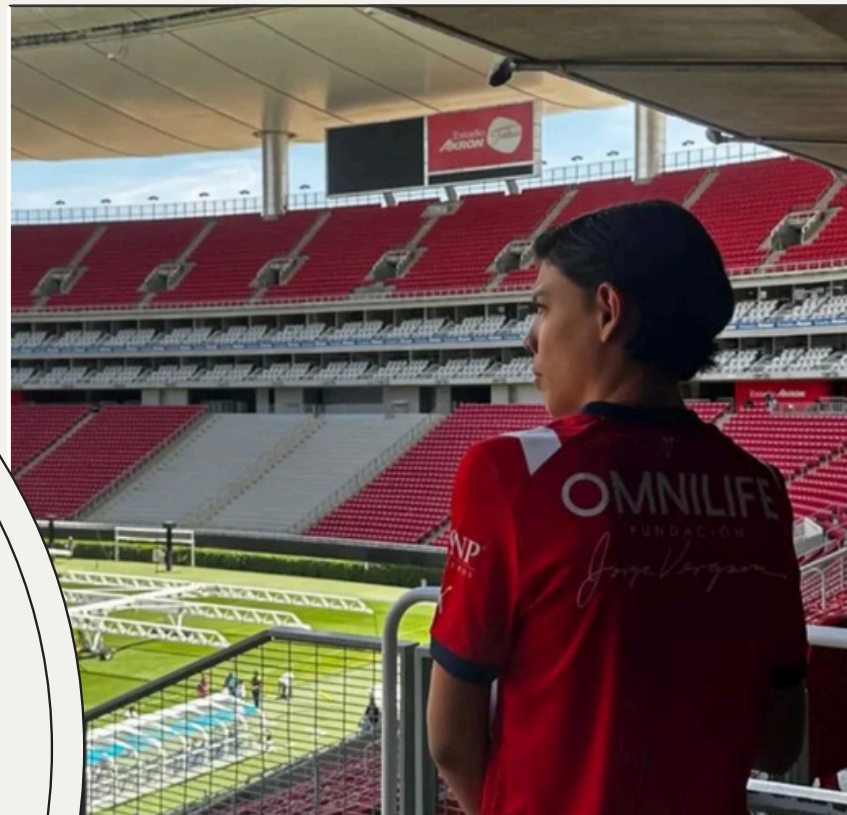

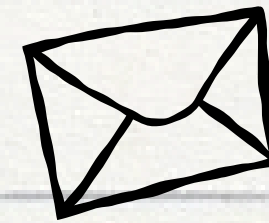

Thanks to them, I feel more confident and happy.
